Everything Else Failed.

I am now 28 years old and from the time I was seven years of age until 1885, I suffered with a severe case of scrofula. During this time I took every known remedy, but to no purpose. My father took me to North Carolina, where I was put under the treatment of an eminent physician. The medicines given me had only a temporary effect, for shortly after my return the scrofula broke out in a more malignant form, and I was worse off than ever before. In 1885 I discontinued taking all other medicines and commenced taking Swift's Specific (S.S.S.). I took a number of bottles and it cured me. I have been free from scrofula from that time until now. I took 75 pairs in all sizes—5 to 11.

Restored Her Health

For 25 years I suffered from boils, Erysipelas, and other blood affections taking during that time great quantities of different medicines without deriving any perceptible relief. Friends induce me to try Swift's Specific (S.S.S.). It improved me from the start, and after taking several bottles restored my health as far as I could hope for at my age, which is now 75 years.

Dyspepsia troubled me for a number of years and I was nervous and weak. A friend got me to use Dr. Bull's Sarsaparilla, and everything I now eat agrees with me. My stomach now gives me no pain and I enjoy my food. H. T. Randolph, Des Moines.

They were reading chestnuts in the fire. “I'm going to tell that big one by your name,” she said. “Why?” asked he. Because it seems to be cracked and wont pop. But he did.—Boston Traveller.

EATING IN HASTE.

To it may safely be attributed the National Disease of Dyspepsia.

There are no doubt that the average American eats too rapidly. No one who has witnessed the feats of deglutition performed by commercial travelers at a railway station will call at this assertion. It is safe to attribute the national disease of dyspepsia to this cause fully as much as to the indigestible viands of which the ordinary citizen makes his chief diet. And this haste is not confined to the hotel dining-room or the railway eating-house. In the private household as astonishing and disgusting exhibitions of rapid gorging may be seen as are ever witnessed in public restaurants.

No one who had once beheld the spectacle could ever forget the fashion in which meals were conducted in a certain home where wealth and every evidence of outward refinement gave promise of better things. The father, a man of business from his sixteenth year, placidly considered eating the duty to be accomplished at the table, and quite ignored such minor considerations as the interchange of thought or observation, or any of the social features usually connected with the operation of dining. If he could not quite equal Napoleon the First, who was said to have often devoured his entire dinner in six minutes, he did not fall far behind the great warrior. Soup, meat, vegetables, dessert, were swallowed in rapid succession and in almost utter silence. The slight delay inseparable from a change of courses was endured impatiently. Almost before the last mouthful was down, the eager man would push back his chair, spring to his feet, and with a muttered “excuse me,” make a rush for the street. In an instant the slam of the front door would announce that he was on his way back to his office.

His children were not backward in imitating him, and at the pleadings of their refined, care-worn mother were powerless to check the influence of the father's example. With such a rush at meal-times, elegant or even tolerable decent table manners were impossible, and the visitor in the home found eating a difficult business when accompanied by the sight of a haste and habits that often could only be described as revolting.

If the mid-day meal must be hurried, let it be so done. There is no duty or reason in attempting to dispose of a three or four course dinner in thirty or forty minutes. If only half an hour can be allowed for the repast, let this consist of two courses only, a light soup, a meat course or a meat course and a dessert. These should be served promptly, but in an orderly fashion, and both the conduct of the dinner and the gastric powers will be benefited by such simplicity.

Upon this point the house mother must insist. Even if her husband will not conform to her wishes in this regard, she should require from servants and children a certain amount of propriety in serving the meal and decent behavior in eating. After seeing that the dinner is punctually served, and that the courses follow one another promptly, she should herself set the example of the introduction of interesting subjects to encourage the pleasant chat that is so potent aid to digestion. It will cost an effort to do this when she is weary and harassed by household worries, but she will enjoy her own meal more, if her mind is by any agreeable means, distracted a little while from her cares.—Christine Terhune Herrick, in Harper's Bazar.

Victor Hugo's Granddaughter.

Jeanne Hugo is just twenty years of age. She is a pretty and stylish blonde and has a good deal of social success since her debut in society, which took place two years ago. She has one defect, however—she is addicted to tight lacing, a habit which rather spoils the grace of her carriage. She was the idol of her illustrious grandfather, who used to spend hours in watching at her bedside whenever she was ill, a contingency that not infrequently happened, for in her early childhood Jeanne was a very delicate little creature. Victor Hugo had at one time a vision for his darling of an alliance rendered impossible at that time by the youth of the parties, and there is no doubt that had his life been spared some five or six years longer he would have tried to carry out his project. Mrs. J. W. Mackenzie was presented to him about a year before his death, and he was so charmed with the beauty and grace and intelligence of his fair visitor that he remarked afterward to a gentleman (by whom I was told of the incident): “If my little Jeanne had been only a few years older I should have endeavored to arrange a marriage between her and Mrs. Mackenzie's oldest son, particularly if the young gentleman resembles his mother.”—Paris Letter.

A Pretty Dutch Custom.

Quaint and pretty is the Dutch fashion of hanging sweet-toned hags against the doors. These delicately strung instruments are called called harmonical in the fatherland, and ring a clear, clear welcome as she stranger enters. The majority of them are two feet broad and possibly thirty-six inches in length. They have various fancy convolutions on the top and two sides of their wooden frames, with a sounding board having seven strings strung diagonally across. Above project the pegs, from which depend flexible wires with round metal balls on the end, and are adjusted that each one will strike its particular string. A key keeps the harp correctly tuned, and the whole is painted to harmonize with the room in which it is hung. Now, every time the door is opened, he ever so little, the gold balls fall jangling on their taut wires and a light, this music is the result.—Illustrated American.

Secretary Johnson, of the Indiana State Board of Charities, reports that there is in one of the institutions of that State a girl who has a face and some of the characteristics of a pig. She real-ly has a face like a pig, and she is afflicted with a disease of the face which she has inherited from her mother. This is where she differs from many males, who resemble her in the possession of porky characteristics, which they always intrude on strangers.

A German of Boston, well-known in his country, recently took a trip to the fatherland. There he died. While living he turned the scale at 350 pounds. His body was cremated, and the remains, weighing six ounces, were inclosed in an envelope and sent to his family in Boston by mail.

It is estimated that if the tobacco used in France during a single year were melted into a cord two inches in thickness, it would be long enough to encircle the earth thirty times, following the line of the equator.

A TARDY VENGEANCE.

Vindictive Energy of a Patriotic Son of Bonnie Scotland.

That eminent political economist who defined murder as “a salutory check to over-population” was certainly an advanced thinker. Every mortal at five o'clock in the morning of his life, and so, too, was that famous surgeon who spoke of the battle of Waterloo as “a colossal example of unselective dissection.” But both these admirable men have been completely thrown into the shade by a humbler servant of the same school, who figured in an adventure that befell a less person than Sir Walter Scott.

During one of the great novelist's journeys through the north of England he was attacked by a slight indisposition while halting at a small village near the Scottish border, and sent out his servant in quest of a doctor. The man soon returned, and ushered in a stout elderly person, in whom Sir Walter recognized, to his no small surprise, a former servant of his own.

“Why, John,” cried he, “is this really you?”

“Ay, it's me, Sir Walter,” answered the visitor, “and I'm verra glad to see ye again. I have gotten some of those ‘hoose’ shoy-books, ye see, and am ‘re-reading’ them. [Sometimes] I canna sleep, and then I list take one o' your books o' yours, and read a wee bit, and, woe! I'm fast asleep five minutes later!”

“Well,” said Scott, laughing good-humoredly at this rather doubtful compliment, “I'm verra glad that any book of mine can do so much good. But tell me, John, how came my man to bring you here? I sent him out to fetch me a doctor.”

“Weel,” replied John, with quiet dignity, “I myself am jist the doctor here.”

Sir Walter was thunderstruck, as well he might be, knowing as he did that such a man was ignorant of medicine as of Chinese.

“I should hardly have thought of your turning doctor, John,” said he at length. “Pray what drugs do you use?”

“I have jist two o' them, Sir Walter,” calmly and solemnly (calmness and laudation).

“But, my good John,” cried Scott, shuddering involuntarily at the idea of such a pharmacopoeia in such hands, with drugs like those do you never happen to use a cathartic?”

“Aye!” echoed John with a vindictive energy to which no words can do justice. “Kill the Englishers! It will be langere I can mak up for Flodden!”—David Kerr, in Editor's Drawer of Harper's Magazine.

THE YAVI SUPAIS.

An Indian Tribe Concerning Which Very Little Is Known.

An almost unknown tribe of Indians living in a secluded canyon near the Grand Canyon of the Colorado, was recently discovered by Colonel H. H. Henshaw, of Los Angeles, who had been prospecting along the Colorado. This tribe were the Yavi Supais who nearly fill the condition of the lost Indians in “The Aztec Treasure House.” The Colonel says: “I guess I was the second white man who ever visited their canyon. They are a peaceable people, but avoid contact with the whites. They are evidently ancient people. The men are magnificent specimens of manhood. I rounded up the settlement and counted just 247 of them, fully two-thirds being women. The valley in which they have lived for many years in seclusion has been two ways of approach. It contains, perhaps, 2,000 acres and is enclosed by almost perpendicular walls 4,000 feet high. We traveled for over fifteen miles along the canyon, over the most lifeless country man ever set foot upon. Suddenly we came to two boiling springs under a canopy of cottonwood trees. From these springs a river starts which winds its way through the most luxuriant valley region.

The water in the river is clear as crystal, and being strongly impregnated with lime petrifies every thing it touches. There are three immense caverns in the canyon, built up during the past centuries by calcareous petrification. The chief of the tribe is an old man of sixty, named Captain Tom, a name given by John D. Lee, the Mormon, who escaped from Utah and for six years lived in hiding with red men. He was the first white man the Yavi Supais had ever seen, and he taught the chief the white man's language and the use of the bow and arrow.

Merit Wins.

We desire to say to our citizens, that for years we have been selling Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Dr. King's New Life Pills, Bucklen's Arnica Salve and Electric Bitters, and never handled remedies that sell as well, or that have given such universal satisfaction. We do not hesitate to guarantee them every time and we stand ready to refund the purchase price, if satisfactory results do not follow their use. The remedies have won their merit. H. B. I am now 28 years old and from the time I was seven years of age until 1885, I suffered with a severe case of scrofula. During this time I took every known remedy, but to no purpose. My father took me to North Carolina, where I was put under the treatment of an eminent physician. The medicines given me had only a temporary effect, for shortly after my return the scrofula broke out in a more malignant form, and I was worse off than ever before. In 1885 I discontinued taking all other medicines and commenced taking Swift's Specific (S.S.S.). I took a number of bottles and it cured me. I have been free from scrofula from that time until now. I took 75 pairs in all sizes—5 to 11.

Restored Her Health

For 25 years I suffered from boils, Erysipelas, and other blood affections taking during that time great quantities of different medicines without deriving any perceptible relief. Friends induce me to try Swift's Specific (S.S.S.). It improved me from the start, and after taking several bottles restored my health as far as I could hope for at my age, which is now 75 years.

Stanley will deliver his African lecture at the Auditorium in Louisville on Thursday night, Dec. 18.

Surgeon General J. D. Baxter, of the regular army, died from a stroke of paralysis last Thursday, at Washington.

Three consumptives who are being treated with Dr. Koch's curative lymph at New Haven, are said to be improving rapidly.

Alabama and South Carolina are the first States to inaugurate their new Governors. The other States will follow suit in January.

All of the papers now are filled with accounts of weddings. There was never the like of marriages before. Is this another sign of a hard winter?

Minister Mizner, of Guatemala, has been recalled by the President for the part he took in the murder of Gen. Barrundia on board a United States vessel.

The National Alliance at Ocala has committed itself to the third party idea and a national conference has been called to meet at Cincinnati, Feb. 23.

Congressman Biggs offered to bet $2,000 to $100 in open House Friday that there would be a deficiency under Republican rule this year. He found no takers.

The first banquet of the Alumnae of the Louisville High School, at the Louisville Hotel Saturday, was attended by 475 of the 1,200 girl graduates within the last 32 years.

Louisville, Frankfort and Bowling Green have emerged from hot city campaigns with Democratic colors flying. Hopkinsville is next on the list and will do her whole duty next Saturday.

Senator Turpie's mother, an old lady past ninety, burned to death at her home in Indiana the other day, on the same day that her son was making a great speech in the Senate in opposition to the Force Bill.

Will Smith, of Mayfield, is a candidate for Circuit Judge in the Paducah district and is the only candidate announced so far. He will probably have no formidable opposition, as Judge Campbell, of Paducah has declined to stand for re-election.

The National Alliance has by a practically unanimous vote condemned the Force Bill and called upon the Senators of 28 States, including Kansas and Illinois, to vote against it. To at least two Republican Senators—Ingalls and Farwell—the call comes as a thundered ultimatum.

The New Hampshire Legislature met and adjourned without attempting to pass any law binding the next Legislature in its organization. With a fair start and an equal showing, the Democrats, who have a majority to start with, ought to be able to take care of themselves.

The Globe-Democrat gives pictures and sketches of five sisters, all widows whose ages range from 90 to 80 years. They are Rebecca Lowe, Vinton, Ia.; Dorothy Pater, Shelbyville, Ky.; Sarah Robinson, Campbellsville, Ky.; Martha Brown, North Salem, Ind.; and Jane Cleveland, Shelbyville, Ky.

The Con. Con. is now working on the report of the Committee on Elections. The qualifications of a voter have been fixed at one year in the State, six months in the county and sixty days in the district with an intention to reside. This is much plainer and more satisfactory than under the present constitution.

Gen. John B. Castleman is making the best Chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee the party has ever had. He is a worker and an organizer and his watchful attention to details has strengthened the party all over the State and brought about a most efficient organization in many former Republican strongholds. He is the very man for the place.

The Republicans have agreed upon a Reapportionment Bill, fixing the membership of the next House at 336. South Carolina and Virginia will be the only States to lose a member. As many Democrats are opposed to any bill that would reduce the representation of their respective States, as keeping the number at 332 would do, there is a probability that the Republicans can get their bill through.

The Rittenhouse Manufacturing Co., a big Blanket house at Passaic, N. J., has failed for a million dollars and 800 hands are thrown out of employment. Edward H. Ammidown, President of the American Protective Tariff League, owns nine-tenths of the stock. When this prominent protectionist decides to question "Am-I-down" or am I up he will probably try to explain how a failure could occur in the most highly protected line of goods and one that was given the benefit of increased duties by the McKinley Bill.

THE CRAFT.

The Morganfield Sun reminds Hon. Henry Watterson that he promised to visit Morganfield and make a speech if Union county would give Ellis 1,500 majority, and call's upon him to redeem his promise.

Take The Hustler, pay for it and by that means you will be exempt from jury service, especially if it be a murder case. No man who reads his county paper and keeps posted is ever permitted to serve on cases of this kind. As a general thing the more ignorant a man is the better juryman he makes in criminal cases.—Madisonville Hustler.

This inducement may influence a few men to take the Hustler, but our contemporary forgets that nine out of ten men have a consuming ambition to sit on juries.

The Sturgis Enterprise appeared in a twelve-page advertising edition last week, which speaks volumes for the enterprise of the business men of the little town where it is published.

The Kentuckian acknowledges the receipt of an invitation to attend the opening of the new Pulitzer building, which will be formally occupied on Dec. 10. The news also comes that the greatest of New York papers has just changed hands, the price paid Mr. Pulitzer being given as $350,000.

The Midnight Sun is the name of a new daily paper that appeared at Owensboro Sunday morning, with W. S. Sterrett editor and L. J. Early local editor and business manager.

The laws of health are taught in the schools; but not in a way to be of much practical benefit and are never illustrated by living examples, which in many cases might easily be done. If some scholar, who had just contracted a cold, was brought before the school, so that all could hear the dry loud cough and know its significance, see the thin white coating on the tongue and later, as the cold developed, see the profuse watery excretion from the nose, not one of them would ever forget what the first symptoms of a cold were. The scholar should then be given Chamberlain's Cough Remedy freely, that all might see that even a severe cold could be cured in one or two days, or greatly mitigated, when properly treated as soon as the first symptoms appear. This remedy is famous for its cures of coughs, colds and croup. It is made especially for these diseases and is the most prompt and most reliable medicine known for the purpose. 50 cent bottles for sale by Buckner Leavell.

One of the results of the recent victory in Louisville will be the enforced retirement of Senator Green R. Hays from the superintendency of the City Work House. Senator Hays is one of the two Democrats who voted with the Republicans against the Christian county registration law last spring and the Democrats down this way will shed no tears over his downfall. Almost any sort of change will put a better man in his place.

The Columbia Cycle Calendar.

By far the most valuable business calendar for 1891, and entirely unique in design, is the Columbia Cycle Calendar and Stand, issued by the Pope Mfg. Co., of Boston, Mass. The Calendar is in the form of a pad containing 366 leaves, each 5 1/2 x 2 1/2 inches, each leaf containing blank for memoranda, and as the leaves are only fastened at the upper end, any leaf can be exposed, no stub being left when the leaves are torn off. The pad rests upon a stand, containing pen rack and pencil holder, and made of stained wood, mounted with raised letters in brass, thus forming an ornamental paper weight. The day of the week and the day of the year, together with the number of the days to come are given, and each slip bears a short paragraph pertaining to cycling and kindred subjects. These paragraphs have been carefully collected from leading publications and prominent writers, the larger number having been specially written for this purpose. Although this is the sixth issue of the Calendar, all the matter is fresh and new, comprising notable events in cycling, opinions of physicians and clergymen, hints about road making, and numerous other topics.

The December Century is more "Christmas" than is usual for that magazine, there being a Christmas story by Joel Chandler Harris, and a Christmas poem by President Henry Morton, of Stevens Institute, while the editor in "Some Christmas Reflections" says that perhaps the readers may find as much of the true Christmas feeling in Dr. Abbott's article "Can a Nation Have a Religion?" and in the article on the "Record of Virtue" as in the more ostensibly Christmas "features" of this number of The Century. The frontispiece is a striking head, "Daphne," by George W. Maynard in "The Century Series of American Pictures," and the opening paper is General Bidwell's account of "Life in California Before the Gold Discovery." Here is also published "Ranch and Mission days in Alta California," these two articles showing with what thoroughness The Century's new and important series is being carried out.

Why to Select the Best.

Physicians claim that pure Sour Mash Whisky taken in moderation is beneficial to one's health. Kentucky is noted for its pure Sour Mash Whiskies and while there are quite a number of good brands on the market, the old Siles Jones Whisky, of which Laz Simon & Co., of Louisville, Ky., are the Sole Proprietors, is especially recommended for its medicinal qualities.

The Fakir December, 18.

Harry L. Hamlin's clever company of players packed Havlin's Theatre yesterday afternoon, and the audience in the evening, it is claimed, was the largest ever known in that popular house, and showed its appreciation and good will by generous applause, laughter and other noisy but good natured demonstrations. By actual count there were 5,373 paying persons in the theatre at the two performances, and it can safely be said that 5,373 enjoyed themselves highly and voted "The Fakir" a howling success. The company presenting the skit this season is entirely new, but it is composed of competent and well-known artists; each and every one scored a hit. The girls have superb faces and figures. The performance and company being far superior to last season. "The Fakir," judging from last night's demonstrations, is sure of a big week's business.—Commercial-Gazette.

A son of Mr. M. D. Pusser a merchant of Gibraltar, N. C., was so badly afflicted with rheumatism for a year or more as to be unable to work or go to school. His father concluded to try Chamberlain's Pain Balm on the boy. It soon cured him and he has since walked one and a half miles to school and back every school day. 50 cent bottles for sale by Buckner Leavell.

A FULL TICKET.

The Republicans Will Make an Effort to Hold the City Government.

The Ticket Nominated Friday Night.

The Republicans have concluded to give the Democrats a fight for the city government, even with the ward system against them. A meeting was held in Postell's building Friday night and the following ticket put out:

1st Ward—Dr. Andrew Seargent.

2d "—Polk Canaler.

3d "—F. J. Brownell.

4th "—E. P. Campbell.

5th "—A. H. Anderson.

6th "—W. C. Wright.

7th "—W. T. Williamson.

This includes but two of the proposed—Messrs. Campbell and Anderson. Messrs. Long, Gilliland, McDaniel and Prowse are left off. The ticket is about the best the Republican party could put out, though to make it they have not confined themselves to their own party ranks. One of the nominees is a prohibitionist, one a Democrat mugwump and still another a Republican who has been in the habit of voting the Democratic ticket of late years. Several of the gentlemen have declared that they would under no circumstances be candidates, but since they have been nominated the presumption is that they will run.

The Republicans, even with a ticket that is expected to seduce some Democrats from party fealty in certain wards do not hope to elect their men in more than four wards. They have selected the odd wards, the First, Third, Fifth and Seventh, as their fighting ground and hope by the aid of Democratic votes to defeat Messrs. Dennis, Petree, Tibbs and Withers.

If you know of any illegal voters in your ward, report them at once to your committeemen.

Another cold wave arrived yesterday morning, bringing with it the first sleet of the season.

All persons who have moved from one ward to another since Oct. 14 have forfeited their votes.

The tickets are in the field, party lines have been drawn and the contest of next Saturday is already begun.

Rev. J. W. Bigham was in the city a day or two last week and preached Friday night at the C. P. church.

A new girl at Mr. E. M. Flack's and a boy at Mrs. L. Smith's were added to the resident population of the Sixth ward last week.

Chas. H. Anderson has been appointed election clerk for Ward No. 6, vice R. A. Rogers, who is not a resident of the ward.

Dr. Stone's monthly report shows the number of patients in the Asylum to be 569. There were 13 admitted during November and 11 discharged.

Mrs. J. H. Lander, of Casey, has arranged to move to the city to live and Mr. W. A. Reed, who bought the place upon which she lived, has been given possession.

The Week of Prayer, which is the first week in January, will be observed by the First Presbyterian Church. The services will also be continued for sometime thereafter.

H. H. Abernathy has tendered his resignation as Sir Knight Commander of the Uniform Division Knights of Pythias, and Knight J. T. Hanbury has been elected in his stead.

A colored woman, wife of Julius Carter, was run into by a carriage on the corner of Main and Ninth Street yesterday morning and knocked down. She was not seriously hurt.

Ex-Congressman Polk Laffoon, who removed to Sheffield, Ala., two years ago, according to the Hunter is preparing to return to Madisonville to live. He has lately been in the furniture business in Sheffield.

Three wagon loads of returning emigrants passed through the city Saturday enroute from Dakota to Franklin County, Tennessee. They were well fixed up with stoves in their wagons and protected by comfortable wagon-covers. They had made the trip overland in nine weeks.

Mr. H. W. Maynard and Miss Belle Mimms, of Trenton, were married at that place last Wednesday evening and left on a bridal tour to Nashville. They were married at the bride's home. Mr. Maynard is a popular young business man of Trenton.

The Methodist church at Trenton has just had a successful revival of three weeks duration. The pastor, Rev. B. F. Orr, was assisted by Rev. H. C. Morrison, of Lexington, and Rev. J. W. Bigham, of Henderson. There were about 30 conversions and accessions to the church.

Rev. Flanagan, of Nashville, Tenn., arrived the first of the week and is assisting Rev. A. C. Biddle in the protracted meeting at the C. P. church this week. Services will be held throughout the week from 9 to 10 a. m., 3 to 4 p. m. and at 7 o'clock p. m.; also a ladies' meeting conducted by Mrs. Flanagan from 1 to 2 p. m. Everybody is invited to attend.

Rev. Robt. Barrett of Fairview, has just received the first edition of his new book, "The Child of The Ganges; or A Tale of The Judson Mission." It is a new thing in literature, and destined to create a sensation as well as do a great deal of good. The adventures of our first missionaries are interwoven with charming romance of the east as to fascinate old or young, pious or profane. Pastors heartily recommend it to their people. It is executed in handsome style, and will make an elegant Xmas gift. Price $1.25. Order at once from the author as they are selling rapidly.

For pain in the stomach, colic and cholera morbus there is nothing better than Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, for sale by Buckner Leavell.

DEATHS.

Mrs. Nannie Rives, wife of Surveyor H. P. Rives, died at her home near Lafayette, Monday night, after an illness of only a few hours. She was suddenly seized with something like congestion of the brain and died before medical aid could be procured. Mrs. Rives was a member of the Baptist church and a pious, christian woman. The remains were interred in the old Garrett burying ground Wednesday. Three children survive her.

Forbes of this city, and a member of the firm of Forbes & Bro.

To Trial at Last.

The Cowan-Prowse contest came on yesterday for trial and is now being heard by the contesting board. The case will be tedious and tiresome and long-drawn out. It will take all this week and part of next to hear the depositions read and then will come several speeches on each side. It will be pretty close to Christmas when a decision is finally reached.

A Big Baptizing.

For the last two months the Colored Methodist church and the Virginia Street Colored Baptist church of this city have been carrying on revival meetings. Nearly a hundred converts have been the result of each meeting. On Sunday morning the converts of the Baptist meeting were baptized by Rev. E. Williams in the river, at what is called the "Mill Pond." There were 82 immersed and the time occupied was just thirty minutes. A large crowd was present to see the baptizing.

A Postal Clerk Explains.

T. F. Baughman, Railway Postal Clerk, has written from Princeton to explain why the mails are so irregular from this place to points on the C. & P. Division. He says the N. N. & M. V. trains arrive at Princeton at 6:10 a. m. and the C. & P. train leaves Princeton at 6:30 a. m. Frequently the N. N. & M. V. train is late, which delays the mails for 24 hours. This explanation is reasonable, but is not satisfactory. If the railroads cannot make their connections properly the old star route system should be resumed. It is presumed they are paid to carry the mails and they should be made to change their time tables if necessary to insure prompt delivery.

More About the Sheriff's Office.

Messrs. Davison and McDaniel, the committee appointed to investigate the raising of the tax lists on the sheriff's books from 1881 to 1888, have completed the last four years, covering Ex-Sheriff Boyd's terms. Beginning with $143 in 1885, the amounts increased every year until in 1888 the total was over $24,000. The work of addition has not all been done, but the total amount for four years will approximate $4,300. This, added to the State and county judgments of about $11,335, brings the shortage up to $15,635, which will be slightly increased by examinations of the other four years. The figures will probably settle down somewhere close to $16,000.
